Regional Vote In Italy Gives Rumor Boost

Communists Fail To Make Gains Forecast Earlier

ROME (AP) — Italy's first regional elections have given Premier Mariano Rumor's center-left coalition government a strong boost, while the Communists did not do as well as generally expected.

The voting Sunday and Monday put Rumor's coalition in control of 12 of Italy's 15 new regional legislatures, and the four government parties got 58.2 per cent of the 32.7 million votes cast, an improvement of 2.8 per cent over the last national election in 1968.

The Communists and their allies, the Proletarian Socialist party, took 31.1 per cent of the total vote, won a majority in the legislature of the northcentral region of Emilia-Romagna, which includes Bologna, and were the biggest vote-getters in Tuscany-Florence—and Umbria. But in the latter two regions they fell short of a majority and will have to win the support of one of the center-left parties to govern.

After gaining in every major election since the war, the Communists got 27.9 per cent of the vote, a tenth of a per cent under their 1968 showing. The Proletarian Socialists lost nearly one-third of their support, dropping to 3.2 per cent. The Communists' failure to gain was believed due at least partly to a party split over the 1968 Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The regional governments are being set up in an attempt to achieve a sweeping decentralization of the government promised by the 1948 constitution. The regional legislatures will be able to draft laws concerning urban planning, agriculture, hunting and social and medical assistance. The precise limits of the regional powers are to be prescribed by the central parliament within two years.

The Communists will have local control over nearly one-fifth of the Italian territory, a wide strip across the peninsula containing 8 million people, or 15 per cent of the population.

Boy Gets High School Diploma At 14

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — "Except for his extraordinary gifts in science, chemistry and philosophy," Roger Antoine says of his son Gerald, "he's perfectly normal."

Gerald has finished four years of high school work in one year, picked up 52 college credits at the same time and graduated with his class Monday night at Newton High School. He's 14.

His father is a mathematics professor at Northeastern University.

Gerald plans to attend Northeastern this fall, studying electrical engineering with the class of 1972 during the day, and pursuing a degree in engineering technology at night.

He doesn't spend all his time with the books, either. He plays a piano, guitar and the baritone horn and enjoys swimming and ice skating.

He speaks French fluently and plans to visit relatives in France this summer.

Prof. Antoine says that for the most part Gerald has been self-taught and that he coached his son "only when he needed it."

Jordanian Troops, Arab Guerrillas Fight

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein escaped an assassination attempt today in the midst of fighting between the Jordanian army and Palestinian guerrillas, the Amman radio reported.

The army troops were trying to curtail guerrilla incursions into Israel.

The broadcast said Hussein's motorcade was fired upon this morning as heavy fighting raged in the streets of the capital.

Leaders of both sides worked out a cease-fire arrangement late in the morning but this was ignored and the bitter fighting raged into the afternoon.

The combatants battled with rockets, bazookas, machine guns and automatic weapons, filling the city with the crash of explosions and the bark of gunfire.

Hussein's motorcade was driving through the crossroads town of Sweileh 12 miles north-east of the capital, the radio said.

Guerrilla sources in Beirut, Lebanon, said the king's driver was wounded in the incident but gave no other details.

Jordanian authorities and the guerrilla central committee—the supreme Palestinian body—had met in Amman and agreed to an immediate cease-fire, the radio said in an earlier report. They also agreed to set up a joint operations room to "supervise and control the situation."

Open warfare broke out between King Hussein's troops and militant Palestinians after two days of tension and the overnight kidnapping by the guerrillas of Morris Draper, the U.S. Embassy's political officer.

The guerrillas and Jordanian government forces clashed repeatedly Sunday night, with about 50 people reported killed or wounded and about 40 guerrillas arrested. Officials said Draper, 42, a native of California, was released unharmed after the 40 guerrillas were freed.

The fighting today began just after dawn and soon spread to

Theft Of Federal Securities Reaches Crisis Proportions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Theft of government securities has become so widespread that some insurance firms have balked at covering U.S. Treasury bonds, the Federal Reserve Board says.

Losses reached $20 million last year for banks in New York City alone, Wall Street brokerage firms were hit hard also, the board said.

The FBI, keeper of the only full list of which securities are stolen, won't make its data available to banks that may be confronted with a suspicious bond, the board told Congress.

The report was sent privately from the Federal Reserve Board to a House investigating subcommittee. A copy was obtained by the Associated Press.

The board made no mention of Mafia involvement in the rash of thefts from the multibillion-dollar flow on Wall Street of Treasury bills, bonds and notes—each a type of loan to the government that can be cashed in or sold.

But it said insurance firms have been hiking their fees for covering the government bonds in Wall Street hands since last fall and, in several cases, have refused to furnish any more protection.

The theft losses last year were substantially higher than any other year in history, the report said.

It cited the $13 million disappearance from the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. as well as two other New York bank cases that each topped $1 million.

Many Treasury bills are payable to the bearer and can be cashed easily. Other stolen securities have been used as collateral to get loans at banks ranging from Miami, Fla., to a small town in central Pennsylvania. Still other stolen bonds are carried overseas for sale.

The Federal Reserve Board report was sent in response to inquiries by Rep. Dante B. Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of a House government operations subcommittee.

The report said the Treasury had stopped keeping its central list of stolen securities 12 years ago, although it said several regional banks in the Federal Reserve system had renewed an informal checklist last fall to block attempts to cash stolen Treasury bills and bonds.

The FBI has a computerized list of stolen securities, but it will give out the information only to police agencies and not to banks, the board said.

The report recommended the FBI data be made available directly to banks, brokers and other financial firms. If this can't be done, it said some other federal agency should start keeping a computerized checklist of the stolen government bonds.

Penn Central Top Brass Shaken Up

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Stuart T. Saunders, chairman and chief executive officer of the Penn Central Railroad, and two other key executives have stepped down in a major administration shakeup within the nation's largest railroad.

Paul A. Gorman, who became president last Dec. 1, was named to succeed Saunders in both posts with the carrier, which reported operations for the first quarter this year lost $62 million.

The administrative turnover comes on the heels of Penn Central's failure to sell a $100-million bond issue for working capital, operational losses, a drop in stock classification by Standard and Poor's Corp. and a bid to discontinue 34 crosscountry passenger trains.

The railroad's directors announced the changes effective immediately, following a board meeting Monday and said that Saunders, 60, was also resigning his directorships.

Directors at Penn Central Co., the railroad's parent holding company, will take similar action, Penn Central said in a statement. Spokesman would not elaborate.

Also affected in the shakeup are David C. Bevan, a director and chairman of the finance committee, and Alfred T. Perlman, vice chairman of the board.

In an interview, Leonard was asked whether his statement could also be applied to the deaths at Kent State, where Ohio National Guardsmen said they had been fired upon by a sniper before shooting into a crowd of students demonstrating against U.S. military involvement in Cambodia.

"Yes, there is insufficient evidence at Kent," Leonard replied.

The civil rights chief refused to comment on whether the probes, in the case of Kent State more than a month along, had identified the officers or guardsmen who fired the fatal shots.

But he acknowledged, in the case of Jackson State, that "procedural problems" had hindered the investigation by FBI agents and Justice Department lawyers.

"The state patrol has not provided us with the weapons, nor have members of the state patrol been offered for interrogation," he said.

Leonard implied the refusal of Mississippi officials to cooperate with the investigation will necessitate calling a federal grand jury to subpoena evidence.

Military Takes Over Argentina Leadership

'Candlelight' Killer Sought

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Police are seeking a ritualistic slayer who calls himself "The Candlelight Killer" and is blamed for three murders—including one which landed him in a mental hospital for three years.

Named by police was Robert Liberty, 23, who was declared insane in 1966 in the strangulation of his 31-year-old girl friend. Burning candles were found by her body.

Liberty was released from a state mental hospital in Atascadero in Sept. 15, 1969, after six court-appointed psychiatrists testified he had regained his sanity.

He was charged with murder and flight to avoid prosecution after his roommate, Thomas Astoria, 25, was found shot to death March 12 in Orange County south of Los Angeles.

Police said the fugitive kidnapped a 17-year-old motorist in Long Beach last Saturday and forced him to drive to Westminster, where Liberty robbed his own mother of $45 at gunpoint in her home, saying she owed him the money.

Then the motorist was forced to drive on to San Diego, where Robert Irion, 52, was beaten, stabbed and strangled in his apartment.

"The Candlelight Killer strikes again" was scrawled in pencil across a closet door and two candles were left burning beside the body.

Police said Richard Greytak, the young motorist, told them Liberty kept him tied up during seven hours in Irion's apartment. He freed himself unhurt.

Brown Demands Repayment Of 'Illegal' State Loans

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — million, June 30, 1971.

Atty. Gen. Paul W. Brown has demanded that five firms pay back $28.9 million in loans made illegally by the state treasurer's office.

Brown's chief assistant, C. S. Lopeman, said Monday four other firms which received $10.5 million in state funds have not been asked for settlement because the loans have been converted to a 270-day paper, sold, about to be sold or soon will be due.

If the firms refuse to return the money, Lopeman said, "We can always go into court in a civil suit."

The loans, the amount and maturity dates were:

Jim Walter Corp., Tampa, Fla., $4.977 million, April 28, 1972.

King Resources Co. Denver, Colo., $3 million, April 17, 1972; $4.95 million, April 29, 1972.

Four Seasons Nursing Centers of America, Oklahoma City $1 million, March 9, 1972; $1 million, March 23, 1972; $2 million, July 7, 1970.

L. H. C. Inc., Oklahoma City, $2 million, Oct. 15, 1971.

Marijuana Cases Still Dominant, Brown Reports

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Atty. Gen. Paul W. Brown said today narcotics violations involving marijuana continue to dominate cases being developed by undercover agents in his office.

He said his agents report that 25 of 37 "buys" of drugs since April 1 were of marijuana or a derivative of the plant known as hashish.

Information collected by the agents was turned over to local authorities for prosecution, he said.

Other drugs purchased by bearded, long-haired agents were LSD, amphetamines, mescaline and dextadrine, the attorney general said.

Fewer difficulties are being experienced in the Kent State investigation, Leonard said, although there are "unanswered factual and legal questions." He did not elaborate.

Leonard's statements came just a few hours before release of a Justice Department report from which a condemnation of police firepower during demonstrations had been deleted.

Ongania Out; Had Displeased Commanders

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina got a new military government early today after the armed forces ousted President Juan Carlos Ongania, the general they installed in a coup four years ago. Not a shot was fired, and life went on mostly as usual for the 3 million residents of Buenos Aires.

The three military commanders—L. Gen. Alejandro Lanusse of the army, Adm. Pedro Gnavi of the navy and Brig. Gen. Juan Carlos Rey of the air force—were sworn in as provisional leaders of the nation of 23 million people. The junta said it would name a president within 10 days.

Among those being mentioned for the presidency are Eduardo Ortiz Basualdo, the conservative president of the Supreme Court who is reported to have powerful navy backing; Justice Minister Conrado Etchebarne, who has wide support in the army, and two retired army generals, Jean Enrique Guglielmelli and Osiris Villegas, both of whom are supported by factions that believe in rapid development of heavy industry.

The junta said their basic disagreement with Ongania was "the lack of a political solution for the revolution," the term used for the 1966 coup. Speeches in the last year by Lanusse indicate that he may seek a return to some democratic procedures before very long.

Growing dissatisfaction with Ongania came to a head Monday morning when Lanusse announced that the president had refused to accept a "political plan" from the armed forces calling on him to share power with the military and consult with civilian leaders. It appeared to suggest that a date be fixed for presidential elections.

Ongania then fired Lanusse, said he would take personal command of the 135,000-man army and barricaded himself in Government House behind the loyal, heavily armed 1,200-man presidential guard.

As military units took up positions in the capital and elsewhere in the country and tanks rolled into Buenos Aires, the junta announced over the government radio station that the commanders had "resolved to resume immediately the political conduct of the country" and "invited" Ongania to resign.

Moments later, a communique said the 55-year-old president was "deposed from his duties as president of the nation." Ongania held out for 12 hours, then drove to the army headquarters and presented his resignation. He was the seventh Argentinean president to be overthrown by a military coup in 40 years.

Ongania's ouster came after months of severe and unpopular economic austerity, student disturbances, antigovernment violence, disenchantment of the nation's political leaders and—most recently—the kidnapping by unknown persons of former President Pedro Aramburu, another general who was considered a likely successor to Ongania.

as shown in advance to news-men said:
"It must be recognized that use of firearms is inconsistent with the government's objective of protecting the lives of its innocent citizens."

Turning specifically to what authorities said had precipitated the killings at Kent State and Jackson State, the original draft continued:

"Even when the lives of law enforcement officers or citizens are endangered by sniper fire, great care must be used to assure that the individual causing the shooting is the only object of police activity involving use of firearms."

In the changed version, the report said only that "the objective of appropriate police action is to assure that a demonstration will not deteriorate to the point that use of firearms is necessary to control the crowd."

Originally, it had asserted that "appropriate police action will never permit a demonstration to deteriorate to the point that use of firearms is necessary to control the crowd."

Asked why the final version had deleted the stronger language, a Justice Department spokesman refused comment. He said he had not intended, when furnishing reporters with the original draft, that the two copies be compared for specific language.

A press release accompanying the report said it also would form the basis for testimony of Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst, the Justice Department's No. 2 man, before a Senate committee later this week.

On Capitol Hill Monday, three Jackson State students urged Senate extension of the 1965 federal Voting Rights Act, contending "the only power we have against the bullet is the ballot."

"Without the voting rights bill you'll still have sadistic whites shooting down blacks," Warner Buxton, the 26-year-old Jackson State student body president, told a news conference.

Expect Jury To Decide Case Tuesday

Jurors are expected to go into deliberation this afternoon following the second day of testimony in the trial of Charles Nickell.

Nickell was charged with receiving money in the amount of $1040 from Vincent Kish of Chaucery, for tires for his tractor-trailer rig, with the full intent to defraud the trucker. Kish and his wife both took the stand and testified to the rendezvous planned Nov. 29, 1969 in Circleville.

Kish alleges Nickell took his money when he met him at the Turner's auto dealership on N. Court St. and directed him to an alley where the tires could be picked up. When Kish arrived there he could find no tires or Nickell.

Nickell's attorney presented evidence today that Nickell was seen by a brother-in-law and cousin in Kentucky the afternoon the incident was to have taken place. He was also to have appeared in the Morgan County Court for speeding that same day.

Prof, 77, Uses Symbol Of Cornell On Protester

By WILLIAM MORRISSEY

Associated Press Writer
ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — A 77-year-old professor of Romance languages has asserted the authority of Cornell University by swinging its symbol—a mace—on a young demonstrator.

Morris Bishop, Alpha Kappa professor emeritus, carried the university mace in Monday's commencement exercises here and used it to beat back a youth trying to wrest the microphones from university officials.

"The mace," Bishop related, "was originally a weapon of offense in the Middle Ages. Richard the Lionhearted used to carry one at his side all the time."

"So I saw no reason why I shouldn't use it for the same purpose. I poked him and pushed him back."

Witnesses said Bishop, a stocky man, took the 14-pound silver and gold instrument from his right shoulder and delivered a blow at the young man's side. "He stumbled back a few feet," Bishop said, "then a couple of the strong-arm boys (campus police) took him away."

Police arrested three of the demonstrators. Two, a student and a former student identified by university officials as an activist leader during his days on campus, were charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

The third man, who police said was not associated with the university, was charged with third degree assault.

The 4-foot mace is a tapered silver shaft with a gold terrestrial globe at the top. The globe is surrounded by silver ribs and a 1 1/2-inch image of a bear holding an oak sits on top.

It was designed by Sir Eric Clements of the Goldsmith's Guild of London.

Bishop is no stranger to campus disorders, though his research in the subject has centered mainly on the 19th century variety.

In a recent talk before the Board of Trustees of the Cornell University Council, Bishop termed current campus demonstrations tame compared to those of the early 1800s.

Speaking on the "lower depths of higher education," he detailed pitched battles with faculty members, horsewhipping and cannon bombardments. On occasion, he said, the faculty fought back.

Gross Sales Tax Collections Up

The May, 1970, gross sales tax in Pickaway County showed over a $6,000 increase over similar receipts for May, 1969, according to figures released today by State Treasurer John D. Herbert.

This month $69,636.42 was collected compared to $51,736.96 collected last year at the same time, a 34.59 per cent increase.

Stock List Irregular

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued bobbing uncertainly early this afternoon in very slow trading.

At noon the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 0.13 at 700.10. Throughout the morning it had been drifting in a range just fractionally lower than Monday's close.

Analysts said the market appeared to be in a process of consolidation, after its recent dramatic rally.

Many investors were waiting on the sidelines for some further indication of the market's direction, brokers said.

Advances and declines were running about neck to neck on the New York Stock Exchange.

Airlines, chemicals, motors, and steels were generally higher. Rubber issues, mail order-retail, aircraft, and rails were off, while oils, metals, utilities and electronics were mixed.

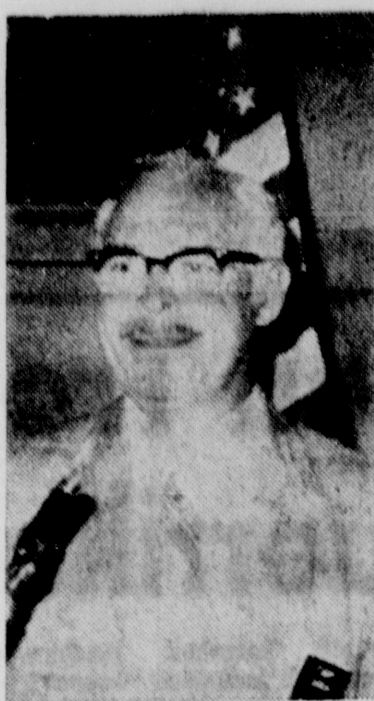

Big Board prices included Penn Central, up 3/4 to 13 3/4; Fairchild Camera, up 1 1/4 to 33 3/4; Litton, up 3/4 to 20; Occidental Petroleum, up 1/4 to 16 1/2; and Kennamett, off 1/4 to 23.

ALLIANCE, Ohio (AP)—Gary Briggs, 15, of Canton, drowned in Berlin Reservoir Monday while on a fishing trip with his father.

Authorities said the boy decided to swim to an island and disappeared on his return trip. Divers recovered the body five hours later.

New Programs At Y Camp Announced

D. N. Daum, executive director of the YMCA's Camp Willson in Bellfontaine today announced several new programs for the 1970 camping season.

The regular Resident Camp Program has been expanded to accommodate 120 boys ages 7-12. Several new programs have been added to resident camp, including Indian Lore, Pioneering and others.

The Frontiersman Travel Camp, new this year, is a separate facility for boys 13-16 years of age. Bunked in four new log cabins, these boys are given a program well suited to their age groups. Separate from much of the usual camp routine, they share increased responsibility and participate in such new programs as scuba diving, judo, horseback riding, trap-shooting, kayaking and others.

The most outstanding feature of the Frontiersman Camp is that they take an extended trip each period on the camp's newly purchased 72 passenger bus. Trips to Mammoth Cave, Boonesborough, Ky., and many other places of our nation's Heritage are planned.

Also new for 1970, are Co-ed Canoe trips. Each trip is made up of five boys and five girls between the ages of 13-16. Mr. and Mrs. John Felter, both teachers from Marysville, will direct the trips. Trips in Michigan, Ohio and Canada are offered on both a one and two week basis.

Daum said that registration is now open and response to date has been excellent. A 16 page booklet describing the Camp Willson Programs for 1970 may be obtained by writing the Pickaway County Family YMCA, Box 386, Circleville, Ohio. Interested persons may also telephone the local YMCA at 474-8621 to request the booklet and registration material.

"Religion And Superstition — Aren't They Both Pretty Much The Same?"

Definitely not. Superstitions deal with small things — the weather, black cats crossing paths, walking under ladders, etc. Religion deals with large things, encompassing all of life and giving it meaning and direction. And while superstitions produce fear, religion gives man strength and courage.

Find out the difference for yourself. This Sunday and every Sunday, visit the church of your choice.

Views on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWERY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's summer soldiers are waiting impatiently in the network wings for their moments in the limelight, mostly July and August.

Some are veterans pulled out of retirement for new duty: Gomer Pyle will be back in CBS's boot camp. "He and She" has been recalled for short, hot weather duty as has "Wild, Wild West." The Smothers Brothers will try to be topical, relevant and funny without being really controversial in an ABC trial run.

Des O'Connor already has taken over the summer "Music Hall," and Jim Nabors' company will give way on July 2 to a comedy-variety hour called "Happy Days." This, however, can hardly count as a showcase for new faces since its stars are Louis Nye of the original Steve Allen variety hour and Bob and Ray who have been doing TV comedy since the days of kinescopes.

About the only straw hat showcase will be Glen Campbell's CBS Sunday night hour which will be occupied for two months starting July 5 by a show called "Comedy Tonight." A young New York comic named Robert Klein will be getting his first real big shot at the mass audience.

Klein 28, is a monologist with a flair for sharp, satirical comment. For the past couple of years he has been on the talk-show circuit—a dozen appearances with Johnny Carson plus repeated turns with Merv Griffin, Joey Bishop, David Frost and Ed Sullivan.

Klein, a former schoolteacher who studied drama at Yale, is currently rehearsing, taping and worrying.

"We hope for a show with a point of view," he said during a rehearsal break. "We will have more comedy than variety and some satire. We're developing, for instance, a 'man against...' segment. One of the first will take on repairmen. Rodney Dangerfield will play a cave-man mechanic confronted with his first wheel—it has gone flat."

A problem of being funny and sharp these days is that "somebody in the audience is going to be offended the minute you step out on a stage," Klein believes, but in order to avoid some protests, Klein and the show's writers have invited a mythical people.

"We have invented the Yankies," he said. "They have no national pride, are a bunch of clods and love to be insulted. But with my luck I'll get a bunch of mail that starts, 'My father was a Yankie and I resent...'"

Few are called as summer replacements and even fewer make much of an impact. Glen Campbell did and "Hee Haw" did. Since Klein's series replaces Campbell's, and it is on the same network as those two, he is one optimistic, if nervous comic these days.

Murder Charges Needed In Kent Case, Young Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Second-degree murder charges should be filed against three Ohio National Guard officials for their roles in the Kent State University slayings, Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, said Monday.

He told the Senate charges should be lodged against the adjutant general, deputy adjutant general and "the lieutenant who gave the order to fire."

Young called upon U.S. Atty. Robert Krupansky of the northern district of Ohio to convene a grand jury in Cleveland to investigate the shootings.

He said he would turn over names and addresses of eyewitnesses who furnished written statements to him.

Four Kent State students were killed May 4 during antiwar demonstrations on the campus.

NATO Nuclear Policy Studied

Would Put Soviets On Good Behavior

VENICE (AP) — U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird met Monday with the other six members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's nuclear planning group to discuss the Soviet Union's nuclear might and how to counter it in an European war.

Authoritative sources said Laird would give the defense ministers from Britain, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Denmark and Turkey a detailed and up-to-date account of the Soviet land, air and sea nuclear armory, based on U.S. intelligence reports.

The sources said that during the two-day, semiannual meeting Laird would also describe the progress of his government's controversial Safeguard antiballistic missile system.

The nuclear planning group was set up to give the non-nuclear members of NATO a voice in the plans for the wartime use of the America and British nuclear weapons which constitute the alliance's protection against nuclear war.

Heretofore, the group has dealt largely with tactical nuclear weapons, smaller than the intercontinental giants. At the end of 1969 it drew up guidelines for their use in case of a massive Soviet attack on Western Europe.

Western military leaders say that such a Soviet onslaught, though unlikely, has to be planned for. They think they could only hold it back for a few weeks or even days before they had to use tactical nuclear weapons, hoping the Soviets would halt for fear that the biggest weapons would be used next.

Indians Set Island Tours

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Indians holding Alcatraz island plan to start conducted tours of the former federal prison site to raise money to finance their occupation.

The proposed business venture appeared headed for trouble. Thomas Hannon, regional head of the General Services Administration which still technically controls the island, said no boats of any kind have been authorized to land there.

He said he may ask the Department of Justice to halt the tours, which start today.

The Indians said each tourist would be required to pay $5 and sign a waiver releasing the Indians from all responsibility for injuries.

The Indians said they need the money to pay for expenses of the 50 or so still on the island. All water and fuel has to be taken over by boat since the government recently cut off water and electricity.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Should She Leave Husband?

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I can't discuss with anyone I know. It's my husband. He's a wonderful man. The only thing wrong with him is that he can't get really excited about me unless I put on sheer lingerie and high heels, and he can tie me up with ropes.

Aside from that he is a faithful husband, and a good provider. I am 24 and he is 27 and we've been married for nearly 3 years and so far have no children. (We both work.)

My husband feels guilty that he should enjoy something so much that I find repulsive and frightening. He has pleaded with me to be more understanding. He is always after me to do this. It's the only thing we ever fight about. Do you think he could be dangerous? He isn't mean or cruel about anything else. He never suggested anything like this before we were married and we went steady for 2 years. Should I call it quits?

NO NAME IN MAINE

DEAR NO NAME: If your husband insists that you submit to a farout fetish which you find "frightening and repulsive" — that's cruel enough to call it quits. How "dangerous" he could be is anybody's guess, but from what you say about him, you are courageous and perhaps foolish to stick around to find out.

DEAR ABBY: Recently you recommended Gamblers Anonymous which I am sure was a big help to many compulsive gamblers. I have wished many times that there was an ADULTERERS ANONYMOUS for people like myself who are compulsive adulterers.

Don't laugh. It is a serious problem. I have a wonderful husband and family, but I have been involved in so many adulterous affairs that I can no longer count them. I am not oversexed. In fact, I'm just the opposite. I can't for the life of me understand why I deliberately get myself into such miserable situations which offer no sexual fulfillment, and put me in danger of losing my wonderful husband, and everything that is dear to me, if discovered.

Can't something on the order of Alcoholics Anonymous be organized for us?

WEAK SISTER

DEAR WEAK: The only real help I can recommend for you

Ohio Highway Patrol Sets Riot Sessions

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Highway Patrol will hold four three-day sessions this month and next to teach riot control to security personnel at all state universities.

is psychiatric help, for not until you understand what motivates you to behave as you do, will you be able to control your actions, which are clearly destructive. I can't imagine one compulsive adulterer telephoning another and hoping to be talked out of it.

DEAR ABBY: My piano teacher falls asleep during my lessons, and when she wakes up she make me go through the whole thing again. Can you give me some help?

TAKING LESSONS

DEAR TAKING: Your piano teacher is the one who needs the help. Tell your mother. You may be a "Dream" of a pupil but this is ridiculous!

DEAR ABBY: God bless "WALKING TIGHTROPE," that wonderful woman who didn't want to continue to accept child support money from her "ex" because she had remarried and didn't need it, and her "ex" had remarried and needed it desperately to feed and clothe the children of his second wife, whom he had adopted. Tell her that here is one lawyer who says that even though her present "well to do" husband doesn't want to let her "ex" off the hook for child support, HE has nothing to say about it. She may waive the money if she wants to. CONFIDENTIAL TO "RUSTY IN COLORADO SPRINGS": When a woman "loves" a man, she doesn't try to make him jealous. She tries to make him HAPPY!

Masons Start Cincy Strike

CINCINNATI (AP) — A strike by Cement Masons Local 524 that began at midnight Monday will affect every construction project underway in the city.

The union, representing 500 cement masons, said it wanted more than the $2.99 in hourly wage increases offered by contractors over two years. That offer is one of the largest made in this year's co-ordinated bargaining between building trades and area contractors.

A spokesman for contractors said the union is asking $4.11 an hour over two years. Union business agent Paul Cobb would not confirm the $4.11 figure, but said the local was dissatisfied with the present offer and also wanted certain changes in working conditions.

Cobb said the union would not close down construction sites with pickets unless they found other craftsmen doing cement masons' work.

The strike could delay several construction projects but would not prevent the opening of the new Riverfront Stadium June 30, a union spokesman said.

Columbus Wants State To Pay Disorder Costs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner indicated Monday he will not accept the state's refusal to reimburse the city for $230,000 it spent to put down recent disturbances at Ohio State University.

He said he will meet with Franklin County legislators "to determine what action might be taken to force the state to reimburse the city."

The city responded to requests from university and Ohio Highway patrol officials for assistance, Sensenbrenner said, and, "now I feel the state of Ohio has an obligation to repay the city for the expenses it incurred."

If Columbus does not get the money back, the mayor added, plans to expand the police and fire departments will have to be canceled.

Canadian Dollar Rise

Canada's decision to permit its dollar to float freely in world currency exchanges was taken because Ottawa fully expected its dollar to rise and remain at a higher value in relation to the United States dollar and other currencies.

As was the case with the West German mark, revaluation is a sign of currency strength, though it exacts a price from the business community by pricing exports higher and imports lower. The West German and Canadian moves are a mirror reflection on the U. S. dollar, the primary currency in world exchange.

The Japanese yen and perhaps some other currencies may follow suit.

Monetary and economic laws play no favorites. They reward countries which are prudent in management of their affairs and penalize those which are not.

By all yardsticks — its international accounts, domestic budget deficits, a high rate of inflation and a declining trade ratio — the United States does not present the picture of strength and stability on which the relative worth of a currency is based.

It is true the U.S. carries heavy responsibilities not borne by any other nation. But this is an extenuating circumstance. It is not an excuse for prolonged abuse by any country of its financial strength.

Not Quite The Same

What would it be like to farm a plot of land in the manner it was done 22 centuries ago? No fertilizers or sprays, oxen instead of tractors, thatched huts for housing and ancient strains of cereal not found any more.

It would be expensive. What else it would be like will soon be discovered by some Englishmen, who are in the process of establishing a farm they will operate exactly as it was done during England's Iron Age 300 years before the birth of Christ.

Archaeological interests are among the prime movers of the project. They hope to discover, by observing history being recreated, how large a community it might have taken to farm a given farm acreage.

Already the modern ancients have discovered one important condition they can't recreate. It will cost them about $84,000 to prepare the farm and an additional $24,000 a year to operate it sans any modern conveniences. For 57 acres?

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Civilization seems to be harder on women than on men. At least they suffer headaches twice as often. Incidentally, the U.S. Public Health Service estimates that we now pay more than $400 million a year for headache remedies.

It takes a heap of atoms to make you what you are. Just how small is an atom? Well, it takes a million billion of them just to make a speck big enough to see.

Taking the little woman for a night out was a much bigger problem for old-time Indian princes than it is for the average American husband. On an overnight visit to a neighboring nabob, some of the princes customarily brought along as many as 200 wives and concubines to give them an outing away from the chafing confines of their harem routine.

Dogs have been domesticated for at least 5,000 years. One theory is that before this happened dogs never barked. Like many theories, it is difficult to prove to be false or true.

Return to the outdoors: Some 40 million Americans will pitch tents or park trailers in the nation's half million campsites this year, says the National Geographic Society. Not all vacationists will do this because they are nature lovers; the Taj Mahal prices of motels are also a factor influencing many families.

Forgotten heroes: Ever hear of Francois Blanchard? His claim to fame is that he was the first American passenger to go aloft in a balloon. The ascent was made on Jan. 9, 1793, when ballooning was a European fad.

Medical advance: New light is being thrown on emphysema, a lung disease which took 20,000 lives last year in this country, double the number of a decade ago. It has been found that people with a hereditary deficiency of a blood protein called alpha-1 antitrypsin—AAT—are especially vulnerable, particularly if their lungs are subjected to tobacco smoke or other irritants.

Folklore: It is an omen of good luck to break a dish on Good Friday. Eating bread crumbs will give an infant curly hair. Itching of the right hand foretells a visit from a friend. If you spit on your little finger and rub it on a gray horse, money will come your way.

It was George Moore who observed, "Everybody sets out to do something, and everybody does something, but no one does what he sets out to do."

Sen. Scott Seeks Support To Keep Leadership Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hugh Scott is quietly obtaining pledges of support from his GOP colleagues in case of a bid to unseat him as Senate Republican leader next January.

Sources close to the Pennsylvania senator say that as of now he would win votes from 27 of the 43 GOP members, with one more said to be uncertain.

That would give Scott a tighter grip on the leader's spot than last September when he was elected 24 to 19 over Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., following the death of Everett McKinley Dirksen.

Rumors have persisted that conservative Republican senators, who have always been opposed to Scott, plan to mount a challenge when the 92nd Congress opens in January.

GOP conservatives' ire increased late last year when Scott turned on the President and voted against his Supreme Court nomination of Clement F. Haynsworth.

There also have been indications lately of strain between Scott and his deputy, Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, but the GOP leader insists they have no serious differences.

Scott says he sometimes takes a deliberately softer line against administration opponents than Griffin because as party leader he would have to be involved in compromise discussions.

The November elections, however, could hold the key to any successful drive against Scott. Only 10 Republicans' seats—including Scott's—are up in the elections, compared with 25 Democratic seats. A large GOP gain or loss could throw in new factors.

Scott is trying to convert the election to his benefit, accepting invitations to speak in behalf of present and future colleagues in return for pledges of support next January.

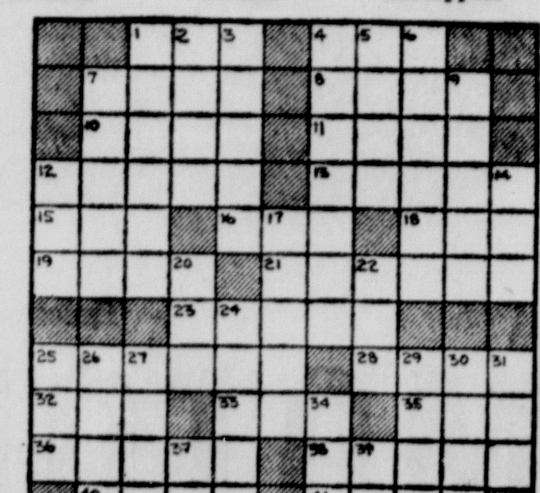

The senator also is eager to scotch rumors that the White House is interested in displacing him. Thus, he was pleased that President Nixon's endorsement last week of a key amendment in the current debate on Cambodia was made in a letter to Scott.

And Scott promptly issued a pointed statement: "I am extremely pleased with the letter and I have twice discussed it with the President."

"I'm parked on the runway, sir," he admitted sheepishly. "I just was wondering where the fuel truck was."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

What is meant by the new encounter and sensitivity groups springing up all over the country? Does this move have the approval of the American Medical Association?

Mr. and Mrs. W. B., Arizona Dear Mr. and Mrs. B.: Encounter, sensitivity and confrontation groups are now new forms of psychotherapy. They are an important part of the general structure of behavioral psychology, which has made gigantic strides during the past fifteen years.

The fundamental aim of these sensitivity groups is to teach people the art of close relationship with other men and women, freed of the restrictions and handicaps imposed by modern society.

When these programs are established and run by competent, well-trained educators, psychiatrists and psychologists, they can make an important contribution to the emotional needs of carefully selected members. Unfortunately, many splinter groups are formed, enticing members who are emotionally unable to benefit from such poorly organized and supervised groups.

These groups are not meant to be a substitute for individual psychotherapy, nor are they meant to treat the severe neurotic and certainly not the psychotic personality. In fact, great injustice can be done to people who are indiscriminately chosen by some of these groups whose single purpose seems to be to extract a vast amount of money under the guise of "psychotherapy."

I do not know if the American Medical Association sponsors or endorses any of these groups. I do know that many departments of psychiatry at universities and medical schools sponsor these groups and endorse their value for carefully selected people.

People in all walks of life who have taken part in these encounter sessions have benefited enormously by getting rid of personal prejudices, fixed attitudes and rigid behavior problems by the better insight they gain through the intimacy of these groups.

Many of us are burdened by layers of fixed ideas that prevent us from expanding and honestly understanding the people whom we must live with in our daily activities. Talking out our problems under the guidance of trained leaders gives a better awareness of our own emotions and how we affect those who surround us.

The American Academy of General Practice in Oregon has sponsored an encounter group especially for doctors. Many interesting aspects of the lives of doctors and their relationship to patients came to the surface. These, I am certain, will be mutually beneficial to the doctor, to his patients and to the important relationship of trust and devotion.

Sensitivity training groups are sometimes known as T groups. Advertisements appear in newspapers all over the country inviting people to join. Before doing so, inquire from your own doctor about the reliability of the people who are engaged in the program. Far too many of these groups are run by untrained personnel with a single objective — to financially exploit "a gold mine of the uninformed."

Some short children can be benefited by use of modern hormones. Don't wait too long before discussing it with your doctor.

The bluebird, to our great surprise, became New York's official state bird, when Gov. Nelson Rockefeller signed a bill to that effect. Up to now we always figured the Broadway night owl would get the honor.

There had been only one dissenting vote, by an assemblyman who favored the pigeon. This could have led to quite a squabble.

The assemblyman voted for the pigeon "because we see a lot of them." Any city dweller has to be in agreement — unfortunately.

Nixon No Herbert Hoover

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN
When the stock market broke a couple of weeks ago, the Democrats began to smell blood. Here was an ancient issue that had stood them in good stead over a forty-year period; they began to dress President Richard Nixon in the high collar of Herbert Hoover, assuming that the current recession, if that is the word for it, will very likely deepen to the point where no economic turn-around can be politically engineered in time for the autumn Congressional elections.

If the Democrats' National Committee boss, Larry O'Brien, is really historically minded, he must be conning the record of old Charlie Michelson, who, working a bundle provided by John Raskob, set the propaganda machine in motion that smeared Herbert Hoover into defeat. But there is a prime difference between Hoover and Nixon. Hoover had a definite economic theory; he thought the way to get rid of depression was to let it run its course. However, the voters, listening to Charlie Michelson's day-in, day-out propaganda of woe, turned Hoover out of office in 1932 before the theory had a chance to work.

Nixon, a political animal, does not profess to any hard-and-fast economic theory. He has trusted his advisers. But he is not committed to a straight-line persistence in any economic policy. Can anyone really believe that he would nail the flag of bitter-end deflation to the mast and go down like Hoover with a sinking ship?

As a matter of fact, Nixon has at least one economic adviser whose general conservatism reckons with political realities — and possibilities. He is Arthur Burns, head of the Federal Reserve System. Some years ago I had a friendly lunch with Arthur Burns at the Century Club in New York City. He surprised me by his frankness in talking about Herbert Hoover. It was not that he considered Hoover a stupid man; Hoover was correct in his general feeling that governments do things badly when they enter the economic field.

Yet there was one thing that Hoover did not understand, and this was the fact that governments are very good when it comes to creating money. Burns said this with a humorous glint in his eye. Unless he has greatly changed over the years, I can't see him letting deflationary history run roughshod over Nixon between now and November.

My friend Elliot Janeway, who has had an enviable record in predicting woe for the Dow-Jones averages, thinks the stock market has not yet hit bottom. He could be right. Nonetheless the assumption that Wall Street securities are worth less than any particular level of currency value must be subject to some discount. If a person owns title to a portion of Ford or General Motors he owns something substantial and useful. Despite high labor costs and the annoyance-value of Ralph Nader, cars are going to be made and sold in America for many years to come.

The auto makers are quite prepared to make cars that will run efficiently with lead-free fuel, and Ford even has an emission control system that can be installed on an old car in an hour's time for ten dollars. If anything is plain, the automotive market will adapt itself to the new world demanded by the ecologists and by Mr. Nader himself. And the unions will have to permit a profit margin of some kind.

To rush from stocks into money makes sense only on the assumption that bankruptcies threaten, or that money will continue to have greater purchasing power tomorrow than it has today. Maybe some of the Nixon anti-inflationary policies will succeed in slowing down the deterioration of the dollar. But it is beyond belief that money, over the long run in a politically-dominated world that has cut loose from metallic standards, will continue to be worth more while titles to productive machinery are worthless. Arthur Burns, I am reasonably sure, did not have that glint in his eye for nothing when he was talking about the mistakes of Herbert Hoover.

WASHINGTON MEMO

By Congressman
CHALMERS P. WYLIE
15th District of Ohio

The action in Congress which received the most attention this week was in the Senate where an amendment by Senator Bob Dole of Kansas to the Foreign Military Sales Bill which would have given the President a free hand in Cambodia as long as the Communists hold American prisoners there was defeated by a vote of 54 to 36.

The so-called Cooper-Church Amendment to the Foreign Military Sales Bill which would prohibit the use of troops in Cambodia without Congressional assent after July 1, had been offered before the Dole Amendment and will probably come to a vote next week.

In his message on Wednesday night, President Nixon told the American People of the complete success of the Cambodian Operation and reaffirmed his pledge that all American troops would be out of Cambodia by June 30.

On Wednesday, the House, by a vote of 236 to 127, sent a bill to the Senate which would increase the Public Debt Ceiling by $18 billion to $395 billion through June 30, 1971, when it would drop back to a permanent debt ceiling of $380 billion. The debt ceiling is supposed to impose a limit on Federal spending. But, this ceiling has been raised at least once every year since 1958 to accommodate Federal spending in excess of the limit. Chairman Wilbur Mills (D-Arkansas) explained that one of the reasons for this latest increase is that the new unified budget concept of the Nixon Administration does not include surplus in trust funds which had been the case in the Johnson Administration budgets. Then too, less money was received through income tax return during the first half of 1970 than anticipated. I voted against the increase in the debt ceiling again, feeling that this practice which has encouraged the Executive Branch to spend beyond the amounts appropriated by the Legislative Branch should be stopped as a first step toward balancing the budget.

On Thursday, the House passed the lowest foreign aid appropriation Bill in the post-war period. The bill provided for new budget authority of $2,300,961,000 which is $575,578,000 below the budget request of $2,876,539,000 and a reduction of $203,299,000 below the fiscal 1970 appropriation.

From 1946 through 1970, the foreign aid program has cost the American taxpayer in excess of $199 billion. A portion of this huge sum has been spent to enhance American interests overseas. The largest share has been sent to doubtful friends for dubious foreign assistance projects in the form of direct grants.

At this moment, there is an unexpected balance of $18,479,704,000 in the so-called foreign assistance pipeline. This represents monies which have been appropriated for various foreign assistance programs and not spent. Because of the state of our economy and with this unexpected balance, I voted against this bill on final passage.

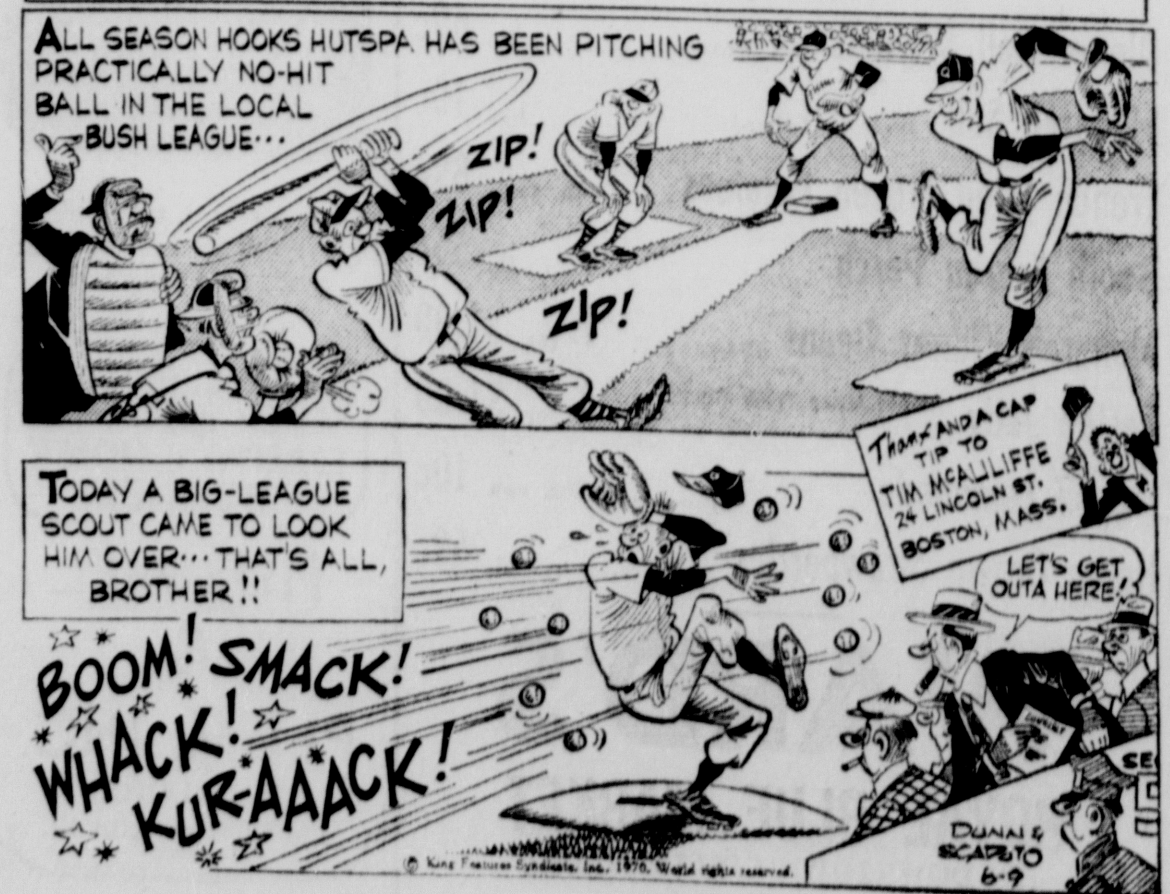

Other action in Congress was the passage of the District of Columbia Appropriations Bill. It totaled $642,906,000; $7,343,600 less than appropriated for the last fiscal year.

In response to an invitation from the Chairman of the Subcommittee on Compensation and Pensions of the House Veterans Affairs Committee, it was my privilege to testify in support of my bill, H.R. 9085 which, simply stated, would provide for annual cost-of-living increases in veterans benefits.

The fact is, increases in veterans benefits have exceeded cost-of-living percentages over the years, but the proposal recommended by H. R. 9085 would avoid the annual debate by Congress over benefits received by persons on fixed income. The bill has a good chance for passage because the House adopted only last week an escalator cost-of-living clause for benefits under the Social Security Benefits Program.

Court Orders 8 From OSU To Refrain From Activities

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Eight Ohio State University students were ordered by a judge Monday to refrain from strike activities which led to a 12-day shutdown of the school.

Franklin County Common Pleas Judge Tom Moody issued a temporary injunction prohibiting the eight from causing disruptions or inciting persons to riot or otherwise impeding university operations.

David Young, attorney for 11 persons who sought the injunction, said the ruling should serve notice on campus militants that students who want to get an education can turn to the courts for relief.

Ervin Sets Speedy Trial Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., charging society is being deprived of the constitutional right to a speedy trial, introduced a bill today to require federal criminal trials start within 60 days of indictment.

The North Carolina Democrat and one of the Senate's leading authorities on the Constitution said "we must take steps to make the 6th Amendment right to a speedy trial—a right so far denied to both society as well as the defendant—a reality after all these years."

Until recently defense lawyers had little success invoking the speedy trial right of the Constitution. But last month the Supreme Court overturned the conviction of a Florida truck driver who was not tried until 7½ years after his arrest.

The justices did not define clearly what they consider to be too long a time, but they warned lower courts to enforce the right of a defendant to a speedy trial.

Ervin's bill would go into effect in four stages, starting first with serious felonies in which defendants have been detained under high money bail and gradually requiring other felony trials in the federal courts to be held within two months. Tax, antitrust and security cases would be exempt.

Each district court would be required to establish plans to carry out the speedy trial mandate and to report to Congress the additional funds and personnel that would be necessary.

Ervin is a strong critic of the preventive detention proposal—which would allow a judge to jail a defendant without bond if he decided the accused's past record gave a reasonable indication he would commit more crimes while free.

Williamsport Church Slates Services

A Missionary Convention will be conducted at the Church of Christ in Christian Union in Williamsport, June 11-14. Services will begin 7:30 each evening.

Rev. Donald Brown of the Circleville Bible College will speak Thursday; P. K. Sam of India, Friday; John Albert, Haiti, Saturday and Rev. Charles Raglan on Sunday with the Shiloh Gospel Aires of the Shiloh Baptist Church presenting the music.

The public is invited to attend.

The plaintiffs, nine students and the parents of one of them, also requested a permanent injunction and $1 million in damages because of the school closing. No trial date has been set for the damage suit.

Named as defendants in the injunction are Lorraine Iris Cohen, Paul Cook, Michael White, Edmund W. Boston, William T. Kilgore, Joel Ann Todd, Philip H. Greenberg and Roger Barreiteau, all of Columbus.

Moody denied a request to include Prof David Kettler of the political science department in the injunction. He said Kettler submitted affidavits denying he supported the use of force or violence to solve campus problems.

Young said students selected as defendants were people believed to be strike leaders, "those who assumed leadership over mass crowds and had inflamed crowds to action resulting in disruption."

"The suit was based on the premise that if the governing authorities of the university did not take action, students who want to get an education, their parents and taxpayers who want public funds spent properly could step in and seek relief," Young said.

Court Completes Record Business

Fifty-one cases were disposed of in the Common Pleas Court during May, a record high for any month this year. According to the report released by Sara Dresbach, court clerk, this leaves 248 pending on the docket.

Of the 51 cases, 27 were tried to court. Fourteen concerned domestic relations, ten criminal and three civil. Three were dismissed by cognovit and default judgments and 21 settled out of court or dismissed. Of these, ten were criminal matters, seven civil and four domestic.

Forty-six new cases were filed during March, making a total of 299 cases to be settled. 241 of these were carried over into June.

In the Court of Appeals no new cases were filed, leaving the six still pending since April.

Draft Board Office Has 4-Day Closing

Martha Ferguson, executive secretary of the local Selective Service Board, announced the offices will be closed beginning Thursday, through Tuesday, June 16.

er, Susan E. Griffin, Alan S. Jones, Rex McCoy, Robert Walker Jr., Don Schrade, Robert A. Stratman, James J. Wemlinger and Elaine Chappell, all students, and Aldean and Erna Coppel of Port Clinton, parents of John Coppel.

Strike activities by militant student groups led to rioting which required the callup of National Guardsmen three times this spring.

Strikers submitted a list of 28 demands, including more black students and faculty, greater student decision-making power, abolition of ROTC and an end to war research.

Student-administration negotiations began after the May 6-18 shutdown resolved some of the issues.

Grange Deputies Attend State Conference

Pickaway County Grange Deputies, Paul Dunkle and Joan Dawson, attended the Ohio State Grange Deputy conference held over the weekend at Pilgrim Hills in northern Ohio.

In addition to the deputies, many state officers and special deputies were in attendance for the two day conference held at the campsite of the Church of Christ.

During the session plans for the grange program of 1971 were made and discussed, both in the youth, lecturer and women's divisions. The finals in the sewing contest were held with a winning outfit from Ross County being selected for the national competition. Mrs. Donna Beougher of Salter Creek Valley Grange had an entry in the contest.

On Saturday evening Dunkle was in charge of the evening recreation consisting of singing and games for all in attendance. On Sunday morning he assisted with the worship service.

Changes Urged In Post Office Reform Proposal

CINCINNATI (AP) — Congress should amend the proposed Postal Reform Act to eliminate a "radical provision authorizing compulsory unionism," the executive vice president of the National Right to Work Committee said Monday.

NRWC executive Reed Larson told the Cincinnati Executive Association the bill would force a closed union shop on postal employees. He said a possible strike by letter carriers in New York Friday is being used as an implied threat to force Congress to approve the bill.

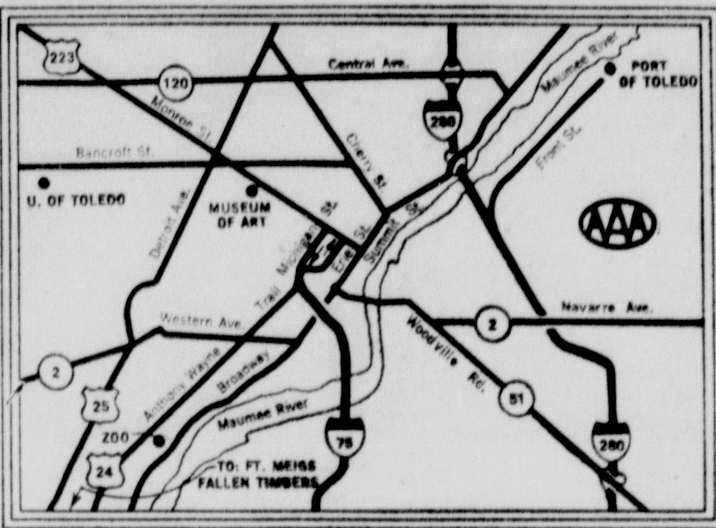

"The real threat in the compulsory unionization of government workers," Larson said, "lies in the fact that it provides a thinly disguised pipe-line, that would give campaign funds to 'union-controlled' politicians."

Larson said he favors a proposed amendment to the bill that would maintain standing federal policy against forced unionism.

Let's Tour Ohio

Toledo Area Attractions Include Top Museum, Zoo

EDITOR'S NOTE: One of a series of short tours of Ohio travel attractions prepared by Columbus Auto Club Travel Department for The Herald.

One of the nation's best art museums, a fine zoo, a busy lake port and major historical sites under restoration are included in a tour of Toledo and area that should satisfy all touring appetites.

If you are in town August 28-30, you also can enjoy the German-American community festival at Raceway Park (U. S. 24, north). Celebrated as an early Oktoberfest, it features a German menu, entertainment, folk dancing and other activity, all on tent-dotted grounds.

Toledo's Museum of Art is rated as one of the nation's 10 best, and has outstanding works of art, especially glass, a reflection of the city's claim as the world's "glass capital." There are over 40 galleries, many with push button informational recordings. Hours are 9 to 5 Tuesday through Saturday; 1 to 5 Sunday, Monday and holidays. Free.

Activity at the port area will interest young and old alike. One of the busiest on the Great Lakes, the port has an observation deck which takes visitors within several hundred feet of the docks where they may see "Big Lucas," the huge gantry crane, in operation.

The zoo is one of the largest, most complete municipal zoos in the nation. Especially outstanding are the children's area, the Museum of Science and Natural History and the aquarium. Open 10 to 5 daily. Admission charge; under 12 years free. Saturday free to all.

The University of Toledo campus has outstanding examples of Gothic architecture, as well as the 200-foot Tower of University Hall which is equipped with electronic chimes.

Historical sites in the area include Fort Meigs, under major restoration, on U.S. 25, where, in 1813, General William Henry Harrison's army withstood a siege by the British and Indians in a key War of 1812 encounter. Nearby, on U.S. 24, is Fallen Timbers, where General Anthony Wayne defeated the Indians in 1794 in another key battle to clear the area to white settlers. Both sites have historical monuments; Fort Meigs includes a military cemetery. Free.

The AAA Club suggests this routing to the tour area: From Circleville, go north on U. S. 23 to I-270; west on I-270 to Jct. with I-71; north on I-71 to Jct. with U. S. 23; north on U. S. 23 to Jct. with Ohio Route 15; west on Ohio Route 15 to Jct. with I-75; north on I-75 to the tour area.

Following the meeting the host gave a slide travelogue of his years spent in Europe. The drama division of the organization concluded the evening with their presentation of the entry in the talent contest "The Bonehead."

The July meeting will be held at the home of Eddie Crites with a picnic lunch and a swim party on July 5.

Blackmun To Take Oath As Court Justice Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court plugs a 13-month vacancy today with the swearing-in of Harry Andrew Blackmun as the nation's 98th justice and successor to Holmes, Cardozo, Frankfurter and other judicial immortals.

To train the spotlight completely on his old and close friend, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger picked a day on which the court's only business was his administering the oath of office to Blackmun, a slight, gray-haired, 61-year-old federal appeals judge from Rochester, Minn.

Blackmun, like Burger, was named to the court by President Nixon. Their "strict constructionist" approach to the law evidently recommended them to Nixon and John N. Mitchell, the attorney general.

Burger has lived up to his billing by taking a uniformly conservative stance in his first term as chief justice. There are indications Blackmun may be more moderate than the man with whom he went to kindergarten and grade school in St. Paul.

Two other "strict constructionists," federal judges Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. of Greenville, S.C., and G. Harrold Carswell of Tallahassee, Fla., were rejected by the Senate for the seat Blackmun is taking.

It has been vacant since May 1969 when Justice Abe Fortas was forced to resign by suggestions of impropriety stemming from his acceptance of a retainer from the family of financier Louis Wolfson.

The seat has been graced with more luminaries than perhaps any other. It has been held by Joseph Story, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Benjamin N. Cardozo, Felix Frankfurter, Arthur J. Goldberg and Fortas, among others.

The last four occupants, Fortas, Goldberg, Frankfurter and Cardozo were Jews. Nixon broke with this tradition by nominating Haynsworth, Carswell and Blackmun, all Protestants.

Nominated by Nixon April 14, Blackmun was approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee, 17 to 0, May 4 and confirmed by the Senate, 94 to 0, May 12.

Make your own WATER HARDNESS TEST

by Betty Lindsay

Is the water in your home all that you'd like it to be? Find out the approximate hardness. It's easy.

1. Take two fairly large glass jars of the same size.
2. Fill one halfway with rain water, clean melted snow or distilled water.
3. Fill the other halfway with tap water.
4. Add to each jar a teaspoonful of shampoo solution or detergent.
5. Shake both jars.

Now here's how you judge: If the lather in the tap water is not equal, add a second teaspoonful of detergent and stir or shake. If the lather now is equal to the second jar your tap water is twice as hard as the naturally soft water. If it takes 3 spoonfuls, the water is three times as hard.

This simple test shows how much detergent you waste.

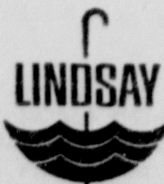

For expert advice on water softeners, see us. We can make your living a lot softer, a lot nicer.

Qualifying Continues Today For U.S. Open Tournament

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Qualifying was set to continue at seven sites today for the U.S. Open Golf Tournament—with more surprises in store and disappointment lurking for other b-name players.

A surprise Monday came at Dallas where Tom Kite Jr., a University of Texas sophomore, outshot the pros and won the first of six qualifying berths. Kite was medalist with a five-under-par 70-69-139.

Disappointment came to Ken Venturi, the 1964 Open champion, at Charlotte, N.C. Non-exempt for the first time since he won, Venturi failed to qualify by shooting an eight-over-par 75-75-150.

A total of 39 qualified at six sites Monday and 77 more were to qualify today. These 16 will join 34 exempt players for the Open at Chaska, Minn., June 18-21.

The major qualifying site today was Chicago where 139 golfers tried for 35 spots. The players included former Open champions Tommy Bolt, Jack Fleck and former Masters winners Gay Brewer and Bob Goalby and Dave Stockton, Jim Colbert, Larry Hinson, Marty Fleckmar and Doug Sanders.

Tom Nierpote, Paul Harney, Grier Jones and Bill Farrell were among 107 trying to 13 spots at New York.

Pros beaten by Kite, but qualifying, at Dallas Monday were Bob Dickson, 139, and Rives McBee, 142. Terry Dill was first alternate at 144, and John Schlee failed to qualify with 118.

Among the 16 qualifying at Charlotte were pros Lou Graham, 135; Kel Nagle, 136; Bert Greene, 137; Bobby Mitchell, 139 and Bob Lunn, 139. Charlie Siford shot a 145 and was one of four alternates.

Tour veteran Dow Finsterwald was one of three to qualify at Denver. He shot a one-over-par 145.

Amateur David Graham's medal score of five qualifiers at Cincinnati, including Sam Snead and his nephew, Jess, each with a 142.

Amateur Vic Loustalo of Sacramento shot a two-over par 144 at Hesperia, Calif., to be the best of seven qualifiers. One of the others was pro Jerry Barber, with 148.

Assistant club pro Bob Johnson of Tacoma, Wash., with a three-under par 139, and amateur Pat Fitzsimons of Salem, Ore., with 142, earned the two qualifying spots at Portland, Ore.

Cincy Reds Face Montreal

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, leading the National League Western Division by nine full games, travel to Montreal tonight to open a three-game series against the Expos.

The Expos are in the East Division cellar, but they're bouncing into the fray behind a three-game sweep over Atlanta.

The Reds, who clobbered the World Champion New York Mets by a 10-2 margin Sunday, will send Gary Nolan (6-2) against the Expos. Montreal will try to stop the Rhinelanders with 19-year-old Balo Moore. Moore is a southpaw with an 0-1 record.

The Reds will have the services of centerfielder Bobby Tolán, batting .324, for only the opening game in Montreal. Tolán is scheduled for two weeks military duty but is expected to get free for a weekend series against Philadelphia.

Tolán's departure will put Angel Bravo in the lineup. Bravo will bat leadoff. Pete Rose will drop to the No. 2 spot.

Montreal was idle Monday. The Reds used the day for a trip to Indianapolis where they spanked their American Association farm team 8-0. Cincinnati scored once in the second inning, twice in the third, then broke the game open with a five-run eighth inning.

Adios Norma Wins Scioto Downs Race

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Adios Norma stormed from fifth place at the head of the stretch to win the featured race at Scioto Downs Monday night and pay $18, $12 and $7.20.

Tall Cotton, another longshot, finished 2 1/4 lengths back and returned $11.20 and $7.60, while Hennessy Abbe was worth $4.40 for show.

The 9-2 daily double combination of Speedy Sonle and Alwin Scot paid $247. The 1-2 quinella returned $10.80.

A crowd of 4,159 wagered $200,180.

Coach Nellie Fox of the Washington Senators ended his playing career with the Houston Colts in 1965.

Cal Rainey, a Jockey Club steward at New York race tracks, won five stakes races with King Saxon in 1935.

America's Cup Lures Aussies And French

NEWPORT, R. I. (AP) — After nearly 120 years of international battles by sailors, the America's Cup is overgrown with barnacle-encrusted tradition.

For one thing, the Yankees always win. For another, it takes a fortune to put a contender on the starting line. And the Cup races off this historic port traditionally draw an immense fleet of spectators.

A new chase for the baroque silver mug began this week with preliminary trials on Long Island Sound. After that, the boats move to Newport for the long, hard voyage before one challenger and one defender meet in the best-of-7 race finals in mid-September.

"It is the question of world yachting supremacy which is at issue," says Australian naval architect Alan Payne.

This year's Cup racing, the first in three years, is again in 12-meter craft, racing machines about 65 feet long with a soaring spread of sail, built under a complicated formula. However, there is agitation for change in the design rules.

One tradition has already fallen: Two nations, France and Australia, have challenged instead of the usual one, and will battle it out to see which is the better. They are bringing all new boats—France and Gretel II.

The costs have not prevented the gathering of three would-be U.S. defenders—Valiant and Heritage, both newly built, and the '67 defender, Intrepid, which has undergone radical surgery.

"We're assuming we have the biggest spectator fleet we ever had," says Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. M.R. Dumas. "If France wins the right to challenge, I'm sure the spectator fleet would go way over 4,000 boats."

The Coast Guard which has seen everything in spectator gatherings from amphibian German autos to 300-foot Navy warships, cannot bring in most of its patrol vessels until the September finals.

This traffic cop force will include 35 vessels ranging from 40-foot utility boats to 320-foot cutters. They must protect a triangular course over which the competing 12s will cover more than 24 miles each race.

Stoutsville Edges Laurelville In LL

Stoutsville edged Laurelville, 6-4, in a Tri County Little League fray played at Laurelville.

It was Stoutsville six runs, four hits and three errors and Laurelville four runs, five hits and four errors.

David Marshall was the winning pitcher, fanning nine and walking six. M. Hart was on the mound for Laurelville, walking four and striking out four.

Kern led Stoutsville with two hits while M. Hart and B. Ebert had two hits apiece for Laurelville.

Flood Case To End Wednesday

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Curt Flood's $3.1 million antitrust suit against baseball is expected to end Wednesday after rebuttal testimony by the executive players' association and Bill Veeck, former big league club owner.

The defense finished its case Monday with a complete day of testimony by Dr. John Clark, an economist from the Arthur Little firm of Cambridge, Mass., who did an involved analysis of certain aspects of baseball.

After Jay Topkis, one of Flood's lawyers, finishes cross examination of Dr. Clark Tuesday, both Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, and Dick Moss, counsel for the group, were due to take the stand.

Veeck is expected to be the final witness Wednesday morning as both sides have told Judge Irving Ben Cooper the Federal Court case will be completed Wednesday.

Both sides will file written summations with the judge and it may be some time before a verdict is announced. No matter what the outcome, it is expected the case will be appealed to a higher court by the loser.

Dr. Clark said player salaries had increased from $19,500 in 1965 to $24,957 in 1969 and $28,088 in 1970 which actually became $28,376 with the addition of newly won minimum salary increases.

Speaking of the pension fund by which a five-year player gets $300 a month at the age of 50 or $772.50 at 65 and a 20-year-player gets $800 at 50 and $1,945.11 at 65, Dr. Clark said Flood's current status as a 12-year-man would give him a monthly pension of $1,625.11 at the age of 65. Dr. Clark testified from a percent analysis of baseball's revenue and expenses that the net margin (profit) had declined from 12.5 per cent in 1965 (up to 14.5 in 1966) to 3.7 in 1969. The figures showed player salaries and pension represented 29.5 per cent of costs (an increase of only 2 per cent from 1965) while costs of selling and general administrative expenses rose 4.4 per cent in the same period.

Dr. Clark testified the majors spent $31,074,000 on player development and minor league operations in 1969 and that represented 25.2 per cent of operating revenue. Although total revenue figures were confidential, a little simple arithmetic revealed major league total operating revenue from tickets, radio-TV, concessions and advertising approximated $124 million and the net before taxes was about $4.5 million.

Dr. Clark followed the testimony of most baseball executives when he said elimination of the reserve system, which binds a player to a club for life, and most proposed modifications of the system would result in "the stronger teams getting stronger and the weaker teams getting weaker."

The economist testified the cost of developing an average big leaguer was $316,000 and that only seven per cent of those signing pro contracts made it to the majors. He said such figures made baseball a unique business operation.

Brazil And Romania To Clash In Soccer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The big question hanging over the World Cup soccer championships today is: dare Brazil relax in Wednesday's match against Romania.

The former world champions, heading the Group Three standings after beating England 1-0, could still theoretically be eliminated before reaching the quarter-final round.

Annual NHL Meeting Opens In Montreal

MONTREAL (AP) — The National Hockey League's annual meeting swings into high gear today with the intra-league draft and a better financial deal for amateur hockey in the offing.

In today's draft each of the 12 clubs is allowed to protect 18 players, with goaltenders and first-year pros exempt. Draft price is $30,000 per player with each club allowed to lose only one player.

Brother Combinations Set For Four-Ball Championship

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
CHICAGO (AP) Notes from the pro golf tournament trail: Two brother combinations have announced their intentions to play as teams in the National Four-Ball Championship of the PGA's Tournament Players Division.

Dave and Mike Hill will make up one team with Dick and John Lotz as the other. Some other major pairings for the team championship at Le-gonier, Pa., July 23-26 include George Archer and Bobby Nichols, who won the last Four-Ball title two years ago, the formidable pair of host pro Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, and Gene Littler and Ken Still, who won the CBS Golf Classic.

Other top pairings include Bob Charles and Bruce Devlin, Billy Casper and Bert Greene, Gardner Dickinson and Sam Snead, Larry Hinson and Bunky Henry, Bob Lunn and Dave Stockton, Tony Jacklin and Bert Yancey, Bob Murphy and Lee Elder, Grier Jones and John Miller, Dale Miller, Dale Douglass and Hale Irwin, and Tom Weiskopf and R.H. Sikes.

All District 4 Team Named For NCAA

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — The NCAA's All-District 4 baseball team was announced Monday by Bob Wren, Ohio University coach and chairman of the district's selection committee.

First string players become candidates for the NCAA All-American team, to be announced later this month. District 4 covers Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Named to the first team were: Mike Hannah, Ohio University first base; John Knox, Bowling Green, second base; Mike Schmidt, Ohio U., shortstop; Mike Polaski, Ohio State third base; Bob Blakely Southern Illinois, left field; Jim Dwyer, Southern Illinois, center field; Kevin Rusnak Ohio State, right field; Tom Landstett, Michigan, catcher, and Ed Robins, Ohio U. and Gary Petrich, Minnesota, pitchers.

land Athletics at Cleveland Stadium. He faces Jim "Catfish" Hunter.

Steve Dunning, picked up the Indians in the recent major league draft and signed for a $60,000 bonus, reportedly is slated to take Hargan's place on the Tribe roster.

Barry Moore was named to start tonight against the Oak-months ago, Billy Casper has played in only four tournaments in this country. Illness' injury and other commitments have kept him away from the tour. And the Masters champion was listed as a doubtful starter in this week's Western Open.

"I guess I keep hoping for a miracle," said Ken Venturi. Venturi won the 1964 U.S. Open at Washington, D.C., then was stricken by a circulatory problem in his hands which all but ruined his brilliant career.

"I wake up with a different pair of hands every day," Venturi said. "Sometimes I play a round like I did seven or eight years ago. Then I play like a 15-hand-capper. I'd like to get it back, maybe just for a little while, to show some of these young players who don't know me just what I'm capable of."

all parts of the city. Four hours later the fighting intensified. Gunfire echoed from all over the city, punctuated by the loud sounds of rockets and shells. Guests at the American-owned Intercontinental Hotel threw themselves to the floor as bullets whizzed through the lobby, breaking windows and light fixture. No casualties were reported in the hotel, but many bodies were reported lying in a road near the hotel. They were said to be civilians caught in the crossfire.

First reports indicated the Jordanian army went on the offensive against the guerrillas, who had repeatedly flouted the government's attempts to restrain their operations against Israel and in effect set up their own enclaves within Jordan.

The army troops were reported setting ambushes for the guerrillas in many parts of the city, and a Palestinian spokesman said the army was attacking guerrilla headquarters on the outskirts of the city.

The guerrillas in turn took positions on hillside houses overlooking the commercial center of the city and threw up roadblocks across the streets leading to them.

The commercial district emptied rapidly of bystanders as bullets whizzed through it. Ambulances rushed about, and many guerrillas were reported killed or wounded.

Among the casualties was a French Embassy attaché, who stopped for a roadblock and was wounded when troops opened up from both sides of the road.

The Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine seemed to bear the brunt of the army's attack at first, but later guerrillas from all organizations joined in.

An official for the Palestine Liberation Organization was asked by telephone who started the fighting. He replied: "We can't say anything now, we are too busy fighting," and slammed down the receiver just as an explosion went off.

Army patrols ducking from doorway to doorway were fired on by guerrillas holed up in nearby buildings.

Ward Attends Ohio Jaycees Prexy Confab

Archie Ward, president of the Circleville Jaycees recently attended the Local Presidents Workshop, sponsored by the Ohio Jaycees June 6, at the Imperial House North in Columbus.

During the one-day workshop, the 269 local presidents in attendance were instructed in basic principles and methods of chapter administration, personal motivation, community involvement, recognition programs, chapter growth and management and leadership training by national and state leaders of the Ohio Jaycees.

The Ohio Jaycees, now in their 42nd year of service, provide leadership training through community service to 14,000 young men in 264 local organizations throughout the state.

Taft Backs NYC Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Robert Taft Jr. has told the House he would support the administration's request for an additional $50 million to fund the Neighborhood Youth Corps' summer job program.

The Ohio Republican, citing a "critical" need for summer jobs in the 14-21 year-old category, said Monday the program should be increased to $100 million.

He termed "totally unacceptable" the national unemployment rate of 15.7 per cent for teen-agers and 32.7 per cent for black teen-agers.

"Unless we come up with the needed dollars, thousands of students across Ohio and the country, especially in disadvantaged areas, will be out of work—roaming the streets with little or nothing to do," he said.

He said an additional 6,000 jobs are needed in Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati alone.

Business Contributes To Educational Fund

Circleville Coca-Cola Bottling Co. was among the business and industrial leaders donating funds to the Ohio Foundation of Independent Colleges during May.

In spite of the general economic situation and campus turmoils, the Ohio Foundation received an all time high of $1,746,809 for the month. The 35 private colleges who are members of the Ohio Foundation will be recipients of the annual operating funds soon to be distributed.

Skyjacker Is Indicted; Faces Death

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Arthur G. Barkley, accused of trying to get a $100 million ransom for a hijacked TWA jetliner, faces the death penalty if convicted of one of the charges now lodged against him.

The Arizona truck driver was indicted Monday by a federal grand jury and on charges of aircraft piracy and interfering with a flight crew.

The penalty for piracy is death and for the second charge, life imprisonment. Barkley, 49, of Phoenix was indicted by a jury of 12 men and 10 women after an FBI agent appeared as the only witness called in the case.

Barkley was captured during a cockpit battle last Wednesday in which pilot Dale C. Hupe was shot in the stomach. The shooting at Dulles International Airport near Washington followed a wild eight-hour ride for the 51 passengers and seven crew members, and two landings at Dulles.

Hupe is recovering in a Fairfax County hospital. President Nixon, who served in the Pacific with Hupe during World War II, called the pilot a "national hero."

North Viets Build Supply Net East Of Mekong River

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese strengthened their supply network east of the Mekong River today with the capture of Saravane, a provincial capital in the southern Laotian panhandle.

Informed sources in Vientiane said a battalion of enemy troops attacked Saravane shortly before midnight Monday and occupied it before dawn. The government garrison of 800 men was believed withdrawing to the east.

There were no reports of casualties on either side.

Saravane lies some 70 miles northwest of Attapeu, a provincial capital of the North Vietnamese. Both towns are on strategic highways and provide access to several land and river supply routes from North Vietnam to South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Saravane, 320 miles southeast of Vientiane, was the last provincial capital still held by the government east of the Mekong in the southern panhandle. The town had been virtually surrounded by North Vietnamese troops and their Pathet Lao allies for some six years, and military analysts regarded it as almost undefendable. Attapeu also had been surrounded for years before it fell.

Military sources said the North Vietnamese apparently had refrained from attacking the two towns because of political considerations but decided to strike when the outbreak of the war in Cambodia brought about a need for more supply routes to the south.

When Attapeu was captured, Laotian Premier Souvanna Phouma predicted that the fall of Saravane would follow. The government evacuated about 3,000 of the town's 7,000 inhabitants in mid-May, including civil servants, policemen and their families.

Meanwhile, a Cambodian military spokesman in Phnom Penh said that the government was planning to resume flights into the Siem Reap airport, recaptured Sunday afternoon from North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces.

Government planes were strafing and bombing nearby enemy positions night and day, but the situation was reported quiet at nearby Angkor, the site of the famed ancient temple ruins and the nation's chief tourist attraction.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A 33-year-old Air Force veteran who says his color changed from black to white after he was given a drug at the veterans Administration Hospital in Cleveland described his ordeal in U.S. District Court.

James W. Finley wept as he testified for three hours Monday before Judge Ben C. Green.

"I was getting lighter by the day," he said. "My skin color just gradually changed, there were no spots or anything."

Finley is suing the federal government for $500,000 damages. He testified that his condition started in May, 1964, when he was prescribed a sleeping drug called Doriden while he was being treated for a peptic ulcer at the VA hospital.

His lawyer, Ramon Basie, charged that hospital officials were negligent and that the drug was "poisoning Finley day by day."

Finley, a native of Cleveland who now lives in St. Paul, Minn., was employed at the hospital as a records clerk when his illness began.

House To Take Full-Scale Look At War In Indochina

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring it needs a new look at Indochina, the House has decided to send its own task force to Vietnam to review the progress of the war.

After three hours of wrangling and four roll calls, the House Monday approved 223 to 101 a resolution creating a special 12-member committee to investigate all aspects of U.S. military involvement in Southeast Asia within 45 days.

The resolution was sponsored by Rep. G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss., who is expected to lead the committee. He said it would provide the House with information independent of that gathered by presidential commissions or other study groups.

It is planned for the House committee to leave after a special group of senators, representatives and other governmental leaders returns from a Vietnam trip requested by President Nixon.

Monday night a farmer, a housewife, a minister and a retired professor left at Nixon's instigation as part of an eight-member delegation going to Vietnam for a repeat of a trip they made more than two years ago.

"It is my firm opinion," said President Nixon in a letter last March to Rep. Fred Schwengel, R-Iowa, an organizer of the trips, "that it would be useful for you . . . to make another visit to the same places you saw before."

The House debate Monday split along hawk-dove lines, with antiwar members contending the committees would be "carrier pigeons" of the military view of the war.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, suggested all 430 House members be armed with rifles and go to Southeast Asia to relieve two Army battalions.

The committee will be composed of six members of each party. Two members each will come from the House Armed Services and Foreign Affairs committees, with the remainder from the House at large.

On a separate roll call the House voted against a preamble Montgomery originally had written into his resolution. The preamble was eliminated by an amendment in the House Rules Committee. It stated the use of U.S. troops in Cambodia had "added a new dimension to the war in Southeast Asia."

While Montgomery favored elimination of the preamble, House doves sought to retain it and forced the vote in which the House sustained the elimination 210-84.

Meanwhile, Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., returned from Vietnam Monday and said President Nixon's decision to send troops into Cambodia was an "unqualified success."

Tower was one of a dozen government leaders named by the President to survey the Vietnam situation.

On his return, Tower told reporters in Los Angeles the Cambodian operation would hasten withdrawal of American troops and speed up Vietnamization of the war.
